Foreword

The staff hopes that this year's RUTHERFORDIAN will meet with your approval. Because of the shortage of funds, it has been necessary to omit several features which had been hopefully planned. We have tried to make this a book which will bring back, in years to come, memories of friendships, made in your classes, your games, and your leisure hours in Rutherford High School.

Valedictorian—STANLEY KOEHLER

Salutatorian—DORA NACLERIO

MARJORIE LOUISE ALDOM

Marjorie's graciousness has won a popular place for her among her fellow students.

Latin Club (1); Tennis Club (1); Basketball (1).

CAROLINA CESARINA ALESSANDRONI

Carol is a very energetic, spontaneous, sincere, likeable person.

Art Club (3, 4); Dramatic Society (2, 3, 4); Co-Y (3, 4); Latin Club (3, 4); Girls' Athletic Association (2); Spur Staff (4); Vice-president, Art Club (4); Hockey (2, 3, 4); Soccer (3, 4); Basketball (2, 3, 4); Captain Ball (2); Baseball (2, 3, 4); Tennis (3); Track (2, 3, 4).

MARY FRANCES ALLAN

Beneath "Tubby's" quiet exterior, we find a delightfully impish person.

Track (1, 2, 3); Baseball (2, 3); Girls' Athletic Association (2, 3); Basketball (3, 4); Hockey (3, 4); Soccer (3, 4); Captain Soccer (3).

LILYAN RUTH APPLETON

Lilyan has been a sparkling, refreshing addition to every social gathering.

Alpha Gamma (3).

MITCHEL BALIK

Mitch, our candy dispenser, has gained a name for himself as a faithful member of our cross-country team.

Cross-Country (2, 3, 4).

ESTELLE ANNETTE BALMA

Estelle, holder of many secretaryships, has always been a right jolly person with whom to work.

Class Secretary (3); Latin Club (3, 4); Vice-President, Latin Club (4); Service League (3, 4); Secretary, Service League (4); Rutherfordian Staff (4).

HENRY THEODORE BARTHEN

No doubt at some future date we shall be chuckling heartily at Hen's clever cartoons over our morning coffee.

Science Club (4).

JOHN KNOX BARNES, Jr.

Jack's speed and endurance have made him a valuable asset to the Track and Cross-Country teams.

Cross-Country (3, 4); Captain of Cross-Country (4); Track (3, 4); Franklin Forum (3, 4); Spur Staff (4); Service League (4).

ROBERT A. BARRERE

Pleasantly quiet sincerity has always characterized "Bob".

Soccer (2, 3); Track (3).

MAY MARGUERITE BECKER

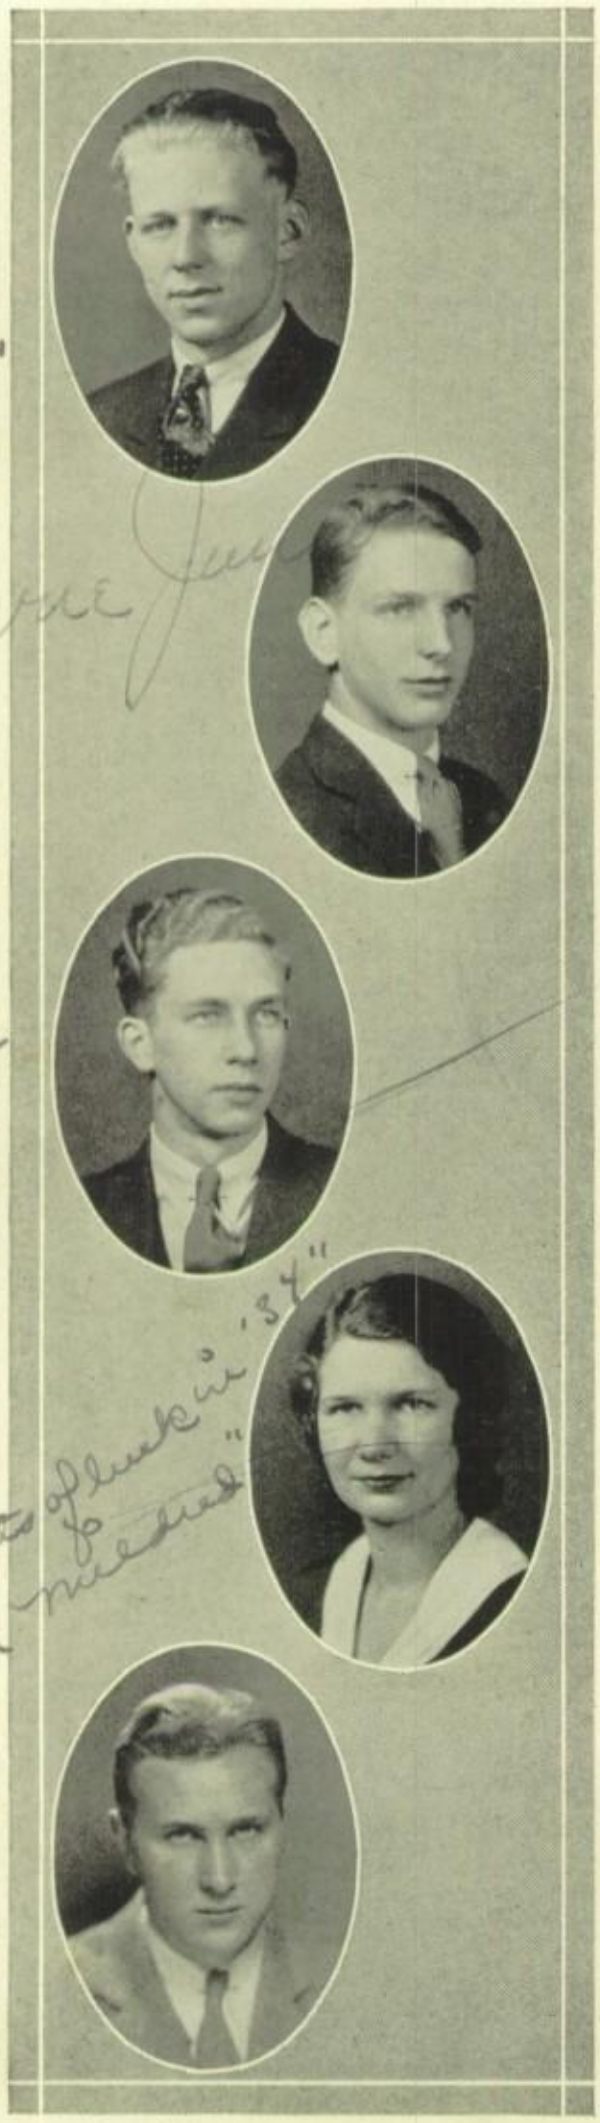
We have enjoyed May's winning smile and her quiet co-operation.

Spanish Club (3); Alpha Gamma (4).



"BEV"

WALTER J. BEVER, Jr.

"Bev's" keen sense of humor and ready smile have made him a very pleasant addition to our class.

Football (1, 2, 3).

JOSEPH WHITFIELD BOWNE, Jr.

Joe always has a smile, a teasing word, a pleasant greeting for everyone.

Treasurer of Class (1); Science Club (1); Soccer (2); Track (3, 4); Hockey (3, 4); Tennis (4).

JOHN PITTMAN BOYSEN

Our picture of John has always included curly hair, a big Hudson, and a soccer ball.

Soccer (3, 4); Vice-president of Math. Club.

MILDRED M. BRANDT

If you want anything done right, see "Millie".

Dramatic Club (1); Hockey (2); Spur Staff (4); President Commercial Club (4); E. T. D. (4).

EDWARD W. BRIGGS

Eddie is liked because of his good sportsmanship. His pleasant manner will go far in his achievement of success.

WALTER L. BRIGHTMAN, Jr.

Walter has played solo trumpet in the band, and has played it well. He is as fine a fellow as he is a musician.

CARL O. BRODIN

Carl is one of those rare people with whom it is difficult not to get along.

Hockey (3, 4); Football (4); Secretary of Mathematics Club (4).

MARION BROTHERSTON

"Maisie" is true blue. The business world will be lucky to get such a sincere, friendly pal.

Basketball (1); Baseball (2, 4); Soccer (2); Hockey (2, 3, 4); Alpha Gamma (3, 4); Commercial Club (4).

REGINA BRUECKNER

Well-groomed "Reggie" with her quiet smile has won many friends.

Latin Club (3, 4); Y-32 (3, 4).

FLORENCE D. BURGGRAF

Flo has the knack of taking a difficult assignment, saying nothing about it, and doing it well.

Science Club (1); Latin Club (1); Spanish Club (3); Art Club (4); Spur Staff (4).

MAURICE L. BULLARD, Jr.

Mike, with the twinkle in his eye, has been a bulwark on the football lines.

Senior Class History

AS the ship of '32 sailed blissfully, if a bit warily, past the rocks and shoals which dot the entrance to Sophomore Bay, who would ever have thought the timorous, wide-eyed crew which graced its decks capable of guiding it with any degree of safety through this most perilous stage of its journey! Appearances are oft deceiving, however. Before long, with two receptions and two dances aiding in our acclimatization, we had ceased blinking bewildered eyes, and were skipping up and down the ropes with surprising alacrity. Cake sales, to a land-lubber, may sound a bit incongruous, but there was nothing in truth which we guileless ones did not essay. One evening a rather startled cry of "Sail-ho!" interrupted our peaceful routine, the while two strange ships bors down upon us in most menacing fashion—the crew of one, all dignified, that of the other, quite overbearing. Then, with savage song and unseemly abruptness did the latter clamber upon our decks, while the former stood apart in stately serenity. There ensued a most frightful period of strife and clamor. Then suddenly they were gone, leaving us with the vague suspiction of having undergone that time-honored ceremonial known as "Class Night."

Now gradually we became conscious of a strange, indefinable difference of atmosphere—and then we understood! We were in the Junior Sea, whose gentle swells soon rose to our heads. We immediately staged two celebrations to mark the occasion, while a brief pause at the land of Asbury furnished opportunity for the entire crew to swarm over the railings and spend a hectic and hilarious day ashore.

It was about this time that we experienced another curious change of climate, for one fine morning we awoke to find ourselves on the bosom of a vast and beautiful expanse of water. It was the Senior Ocean, the goal of all our wanderings! The sea was enticingly serene, and the swells, too, were gone from our heads! Another celebration, this time the "Senior Dance," named in honor of our new-found ocean, provided a most delightful evening for all on board.

This much the log records. Now, once more, shall three ships gather from over the waters to observe the legendary ritual of "Class Night." Then, shortly thereafter, shall we pass under spreading canvas through the Straits of Graduation into the larger sea beyond, firm in our trust that the remarkable courage and unerring seamanship which have thus far distinguished our career will not fail us in whatever trials and tempests may come.

Junior Class

THIS year the destinies of the Junior Class have been ably directed by the officers and by Mr. Odell, acting as their interested and helpful advisor.

In the late fall the class sponsored the annual football dance. Very appropriately they turned the gym into a miniature gridiron, with white lines marking off the yardage, goal poats at either end, and banners decorating the walls.

To raise the money for their assessment for the Rutherfordian picture, the class of '33 gave a tea dance whose proceeds far exceeded their fondest hopes. As this goes to press the Juniors are planning to show themselves on the annual class night in full array and fighting force as usual, with battle cry and song and cheer.

The list of outstanding representatives of the class of '33 in the field of boys' sports is unusually large. In football there are Jim Hands, captain-elect, Jack Thomas, Marvin Keys, and Bob Brasher. Of the basketball team is Walter McKenna. In cross country there are Ed Andriola, captain-elect, and John Elliot. Soccer claims Christy Vuyosevitch as captain-elect, Robert Palmateer, and Jack Farr.

Among the outstanding girl athletes are: Betty Van Auken, Margaret Ellis, Margaret Telschow, Edna Steuber, and Doris Wheeler. These girls have been loyal supporters and active members of all the interclass teams.

Sophomore Class

THIS is the story of the class of '34, that irresistible, unsuppressable bunch of Sophs, who have so shocked their elders, the haughty Seniors and the gradually maturing Juniors with their pep, and lack of awe. What Soph girls have ever before succeeded in capturing the hearts of our outstanding Senior luminaries? What Soph class has ever before placed athletes on so many of our varsity teams? To mention a few,—Hillhouse and Williams of football fame; Anderson, Lucy, Weiler, and Levinson active in basketball; Tiedeman, Russel, and Platt, members of the soccer squad; to say nothing of many track and baseball candidates. As for the girls, such fine athletes as Stenz, Sloat, Calleja, and Chreckjian owe allegiance to the Sophomore Class. Remember that Soph dance? Yes sir! it was a success. The class is buying its banner through the proceeds. Did you say brains? Edna Gereke maintained an average of ninety-five last term.

An amazing class indeed, which under the able guidance of Mr. Fisher, has completed a very successful year. In view of its accomplishments, let's wish them continued good fortune as they draw nearer to June, 1934.

On Catching a Trout

IT is a warm May morning. The spring floods are over, and the streams have settled to their courses once more. We are following the well-worn trail downstream beside one of our favorite brooks. The babbling of the water, the temperate breezes, early violets, and the re-awakened bees have the effect of tuning us to the correct pitch for the day's sport.

We enter under a stand of tall, menacing firs and separate to different runs of the stream. I decide to go to a little boulder-surrounded pool lying close under a steep bank which I thought, if approached in the right manner and flattered with offerings of care and delicacy, would yield me a hard-fighting rainbow.

Let us picture the pool. It is, as I have said, surrounded with boulders, some completely submerged, some sticking their gray noses out of the cold, clear water. On one side the bank slopes abruptly upward, with overhanging willows and alders,—ideal conditions for trout. The pool is deep, and, except for the tiny waterfall at the upper end, is very quiet, although as I stand hip-deep at the foot, the current's tug is not to be overlooked. So I ease forward, carefully and silently.

I look to my tackle. The rod seems a living thing; the line glistens in its enameled splendor; and the shiny gut leader tapers evenly to the puffy, spidery bivisible I have chosen as my ambassador to troutdom. I myself, by far the most important part of my equipment, am ready and anxious for the fray.

My next thought turns to the cast. To me the cast is the highest peak of the fly-fisherman's art. The well presented fly is what arouses my opponent's dander, or appetite, as his disposition may be. So with these things in mind, I start flicking out the line, reaching farther and farther out with each sweep of the wrist till my fly hovers over the spot I have selected as the most promising for trout. The fly settles gently, like a bit of down on a windless day. As it touches the water, without marring the even sheen of the surface, it begins its flight over the enemy territory, sweeping to right or left with each twist of the current, and bobbing cockily, too cockily, for its own safety for as it sweeps into a long, smooth stretch of glass-like water, the surface about it is shattered like a thin window, and scattered in all directions leading skyward, while the fly itself disappears in a cloud of spray. The rainbow has struck, and with a quick raising of the tip of the rod, I am fast to the most quick-witted specimen of piscine energy that exists. He is away before I am aware that I am fast to him, and, like an arrow, he pierces the swift current with his well-molded snout, while his powerful tail churns the water in his wake. Again he rushes to the surface splintering the water in his mad plunge skyward. Then away with the current, streaking by me like a ray of light, while I hastily and nervously reel in yard on yard of dripping line. But the god of fishermen, has stuck by me in this emergency. My foe comes up comes up against a taut line once more, as the bamboo arches into a straining bow. Now as he feels the pressure of the surging rod again, he zooms into the air for the third time, arching gracefully in an attempt to throw that feather-covered bit of steel clear of his jaw, while his sides glisten like a tray of mixed jewels frosted with sunlight. Falling back to the water, he heads across the current, the real screeching its protest. He is fighting for his life now, for he is weakening, and his two excursions into the upper air have sapped his energy. He goes deep down as a last resort, but the current and the pressure of the rod lead him out again, and I now begin to prepare for the netting. Edging him slowly in, inch by inch, I watch his gasping gills and slowly pulsating tail come closer and closer, till I deem it time to try the net. So, slowly submerging it, I lead the apparently exhausted battler over it, but as I go to lift the meshes about him, he darts madly away, drawing on an unforeseen well of energy. But all my tackle holds, and having given his all, my worthy opponent comes meekly to net, defeated, but with his spirit untamed. I wet my hand in the stream when I remove the hook from his jaw, so as to leave the beautiful skin unspoiled, and then place him reverently on a fragrant bed of ferns and tender spruce tips in the bottom of my creel—a fitting couch for so mighty a warrior.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS, '32.

Depression

"Fifty cents? Impossible!
That would buy five loaves of bread!

"Movies?
When every cent goes for food!

"A new dress?
Can you eat it?

"Shoes for a dance?
What an absurdity,—when your mother gets along with one pair!

"College! Have you gone crazy—
When we can't pay the rent!"

—JEAN WEST, '32.

Radiator

Seven gilded throats sputter their protest
At awakening in the coldness of dawn—
Whereas, I am comforted
By the warmth-bringing hissing and wheezing.

—WINIFRED MATTHIESSEN, '32.

A Crystal Bowl

A gold-yellow tulip floats on the prisoned liquid. Glorious! The sunbeams shatter, scatter little electric blue points of light over the lace of the prosaic table-scarf. The warm glow of the golden tulip spreads over, envelops the hard glints, enthralls the crystal, makes it throb in harmony. I touch the bowl. Spang! The liquid glitters, the blossom quivers—then quiets its loveliness to the gentleness of the cool water. A mysterious magic croons from the depths. A soft bell-note of happiness springs through the prisms of color, weaves a soft hum of melody.

The beauty of a yellow flower in a crystal bowl shatters the monotony and commonplaceness around me, soothes me, enmeshes me in enchantment!

—DORIS RUUTH, '32.

The Elm

What better tree could be chosen as a memorial to George Washington? The elm stands tall and stately and is unusually strong and long-lived. What could illustrate more clearly the strength of Washington's character, his great self-possession and calmness which enabled him to judge and to act with foresight and confidence impossible to men less disciplined and self-controlled? The spreading branches of the elm extend upward far above the ground, reaching toward Heaven, and it was to God that Washington turned for help. This is truly an American tree and is well-known historically. It was beneath the shade of an elm that Washington took command of the American army in 1775. Therefore it seems to me that an elm tree is the most fitting memorial to him who fought that we might have peace, liberty, and happiness.

—ALICE MARTING, '34.

Night-Magic

The roseate glow of a magnolia tree
Beneath a gilded moon;
The silhouette of trees, a dark and intricate pattern,
Pinned on a navy sky;
(How cool the touch of the feather-fingered night-breeze Against my cheek!)
Drowsy silver buds on the outflung arm
Of a maple tree,—
All these weave about me
A cloak of gossamer magic.

—Ruth Koehler, '32.

Two Aspects of April

William Carlos Williams

1.

Nothing is more certain than the flower—and best, sometimes, are those that start into blossom directly from the harshness of bare gardens—the crocus breaking through, narcissi heaving a trampled place, and I saw once jonquils, forgotten, buried under a new driveway, covered with broken stone but still unsuppressed, rising still into a graceful flower-head—

2.

—and after ten years they've finally graded the field back of the high school making it fit for athletic purposes—
They've even relocated the baseball cage —not quite correctly since it makes A short left field, but at least something has been accomplished—April is that way. It wakes up, gets things done, about as well as they can be done—after winter's dullness—
Good luck, 1932! It's your turn now.

Aquarium

Cool, green water in a crystal tank, softly lapping, stirred by feathery tails. Fish —slim, golden, with flowing, gauzy veils trailing, floating behind—glide in and out, out and in, through wisps of waving, feathery green. Round mouths opening—shutting—opening. Tiny bubbles rising, vanishing. Here's a funny fellow!—fat, black body, bulging eyes. There's one all silver! A gleam of sunlight dancing in the water turns his scales to dazzling brilliance. Slowly, endlessly, they move—in and out—listless. Peace and tranquility brood in the crystal tank. I dabble my finger tip in the water. In terror they dart away—flash into far corners. New lights play in the tiny waves, then die slowly—slowly. All is serene again. Tranquil fish—gold, black, silver—glide to and fro, in and out, round and round, on and on, on and on.

CLAIRE D. MILLER, '32.

Sesame

A song
Like a golden key
Opens before my eyes
A box of precious jewels
Of priceless memories.

—CHARLES BRASHER, '32.

Maze

My mind is like a tangled mass of yarn—
I struggle, I sigh—
Will I ever reach the end?
Each untied knot but leads me farther
Into jumbled questionings.

And then in the midst of my strugglings,
Like the whisper of a cool breeze on a sun-dried land,
Comes a white-haired lady.
Laying cool, white fingers on my tangled yarn,
She softly whispers,
"You were not meant to do this in one day.
Rest from your labors, and know,—
Some yarn it is best not to untangle."

—Margaret Meriam, '32.

Escape

She looked warm—
Warm, intimate, loving—
Yet—I touched her hands. . . . .
She was cool—
The coolness of wet sea sand.
I fled,
Not wishing to be alone with coolness.

—Margaret Meriam, '32.

Ferries

How like old women are the boats
Which cross and recross the broad open corridor of the Hudson.
Broad-bosomed ferries are the maids-of-all-work.
Carrying burdens in their ponderous arms,
They plod—
Treading a weary lane from shore to shore.
What dreams does a house-maid cherish
Of sailing the seas of mystery?
Of decks loaded with lovely things°
Do they mind the disdain of Mauretania,
Stately, graceful woman of the Seven Seas?

—Ruth Koehler, '32.

Curtain

The climax of the piece had come—and gone.
Sun, chief actor of the play,
Had departed from the scene,
Trailing billowy robes of gold
In his pompous exit.
The painted backdrop of the sky,
With ripples of rose and silver,
Faded and was gray,—
For Dusk, with his minions,
Has snuffed the footlights of "Day."

—Ruth Koehler, '32.

Skyscraper

Bright eyes in the lofty black,
Eyes of gods in a modern Olympus,
New stars in a man-made heaven,—
They gleam in the darkened heights
Far over their puny makers.
Skies of marble and lime,
Skies of steel and stone
Holding new stars on high,—
Rearing up through the vast night-space.
Strange god-eyes of man's making
Glow in skies of steel.

—Alva Gallon, '32.

Ogre

A whistle starts the noise of a factory day—
The clattering, whirring, screaming, grinding day—
The smoke-filled, dust-choked, soul-quenching day—
A day like a hundred others—
A day of fear,—fear of the whirring screaming wheels—
Fear that they will some day get you,
As they got your father or brother—
Fear,—fear of a shut-down with its Starvation
Riots
Crying children—
Fear—fear—fear!

—Walter Bever, '32.

Fancy Versus Fact

"Small, thriving commercial town
Harboring fifteen thousand within its homes—
Abounding in parks,—Utopia—
Thriving
Bustling
Situated in a remarkable locality—
A model village founded on ideal principles—"
So states Rand and McNally.

Small struggling commercial town
Harboring fifteen thousand within its grip of Politicians
Thieves
Deluded citizens—
A giant vise relentlessly crushing, tearing, wrecking—
Corrupt
Dirty
Ugly—
Sprawling in a desolated locality
Abounding in poverty and filth—
A factory town founded on greed—
So cries God's nature.

—Victor Johnson, '32.

Hands

Hands—two outstretched hands—dead hands, cut off just below the wrist! Suppliant, begging, pitiful hands. Jointless, puffed fingers, sunken palms—ghastly hands! It can't be so—not in this day and age! And yet—see the mold—gray, dusty mold! See how its clings to your fingers!. . .

Rubber gloves with a little flour on them!

—Jack Barnes, '32.

Duality

There are two of me—
The one is big and clumsy like a gnome;
The other, light and airy like a sprite.
The gnome says, "This is serious!"
"Laugh!" commands the sprite.
The gnome orders, "Work!"
And the sprite answers, "I'll play!"

I've two hard masters,
(I'm in a sorry plight)
The one is a gnome;
The other is a sprite.

The gnome is big and clumsy
And never wants to tarry;
The sprite is mighty lazy,
But he's also light and airy.

The gnome says, "This is serious!"
"Laugh!" commands the sprite,
And I must bear the turmoil,
For I cannot stop the fight.

The gnome says, "Work!"
The sprite responds, "I'll play!"
And thus I am entangled
All the live-long day.

—Margaret Meriam, '32.

Question

The day slipped quietly into darkness,
Leaving a trail of living red.
Will life slip so gently into sleep?

—Dora Naclerio, '32.

Riding

On my desk
stands a small green horse.

In my garage
stands a large green car.

On the horse
I can ride into the magic land of imagination.

In my car
I can ride along the highways of the world.

—Jean West, '32.

Timidity

Lights, lights, lights!
I'm afraid of them.
Oh, blessed darkness,
Save me, and hold me in your deepness.
Dear God, keep those awful lights away,
And rock me in your cradle of darkness!

—Rose Schweid, '32.

Sleep

Soothe me, Sleep,
Hide me in your mystery.
In the fancy of your dreams,
I may know a little joy.

—Dora Naclerio, '32.

FOOTBALL

Captain—MAURICE BULLARD. Managers—DERICK KIPP, FRED WOOD.
Coach—MR. TRYON. Assistant Coach—MR. DUPES.

Football

THE 1931 football season was one of the most sensational in Rutherford High School history. Starting with a practically green backfield, Coach Tryon developed a remarkable combination. Under assistant coach Dupes, a line composed of six of last year's letter men was shaped into a very smooth working machine. After a tie with East Rutherford in the season's first game the morale of both the team and its following was very low, finally resulting in a defeat by Kearny and a tie with Ridgewood. Before the game with Ridgefield Park, the climax of the season, the spirits of the school were aroused by a pep meeting. At the game the band made its first appearance, and the student support was amazing. Our inspired team defeated Ridgefield Park, and Leonia, gaining the N. N. J. I. L. title, and later won against Passaic. Hands succeeds Bullard as captain, while Ragsdale and McAlister succeed Kipp and Wood as co-managers.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Captain—JOHN BARNES. Manager—FRANCIS CARUSO. Coach—MR. STONE.

Cross-Country

THE Rutherford cross-country team completed a rather successful season under the training of Coach Stone. Building around Captain Barnes, Andriola, and Vass, last year's lettermen, a new team was drawn into shape. New material developed, and Lindeman and Elliot, two new men, were found to be valuable runners. The first part of the season was characterized by fine team-work, but the boys were finally defeated by the more seasoned runners from Passaic and Ridgewood. The team did quite well in the State meet, and in competing against the best teams in the state took fifth place. The annual Stevens meet was cancelled, but as we have two legs on the cup to Passaic's one, it will be given to Rutherford. Manager Caruso has arranged a schedule for next year, and Coach Stone expects to have a more experienced group. Lindeman, Raabe, Elliot, Sullivan, and Captain-elect Andriola will return.

BOYS' SOCCER

Soccer

RUTHERFORD'S soccer team went into action this year under its new coach, Mr. Odell. Although soccer is still a comparatively new sport in our school, the players came up to expectations and defeated East Rutherford for the first time since the team has been in existence. Under the leadership of Captain Bill Williams, the squad played a very hard schedule. More enthusiasm was shown by the student body this year than ever before, and their support was a decided help. Of the seventeen lettermen, six will return as a nucleus for next year's varsity under the captaincy of Christy Vuyosevich. Manager-elect McIlwaine, successor to Manville Smith, is arranging a schedule for next year, and is looking forward hopefully to a League championship team.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Manager—DANIEL GUSAEFF. Coach—MR. TRYON

Basketball

THE success of this year's basketball team is unprecedented in the history of the High School. Mr. Tryon, as coach, trained the first N. N. J. I. L. championship basketball team that Rutherford has had since 1913. Coomber, Salomon, Paul, Silverman, and Captain-elect McKenna, the varsity, brought basketball to its place among leading sports in school. Manager Gusaeff will be succeeded by Rennie Arata.

BOYS' BASEBALL

Captain—JOHN COOMBER. Manager—LOUIS EPPEL. Coach—MR. ODELL.

Baseball

MR. ODELL took over Mr. Hovey's place as coach this year, and was met by encouraging support at the very start of the season. Many veterans returned to play a difficult schedule. Coomber, Sauer, Paul, McKenna, Schroeder, and Daly were back to defend their places on the nine. The team felt the loss of Captain Yuhaz to some extent, but he was succeeded by John Coomber, who has led the players quite efficiently. As this article is being written, the team's chances for a N. N. J. I. L. championship seem very hopeful, and the material for our 1933 nine seems to be excellent. Several sophomores who have turned out are keeping the varsity men on their toes. Louis Eppel has managed the team very competently. Credit is also due to Mr. Ralph Visco, an alumnus of Rutherford High and Lehigh University, who acted as assistant coach.

BOYS' TRACK

Captain—CHESTER INGRAHAM. Manager—HARRY STEUBER. Coach—MR. DUPES.

Track

THE Rutherford track team was very seriously handicapped this year owing to the reconstruction of our athletic field. In spite of the fact that the boys have been forced to practice on the rough ground behind the school, Coach Dupes has developed a fairly well-balanced group. Our runners were also somewhat handicapped by an unusually late start, owing to unsatisfactory weather conditions, and these found themselves facing the first meet of the season after two short weeks of training. However, as this article goes to press, the team is shaping up very well, and prospects seem extraordinarily bright in spite of existing obstacles. Captain Ingraham returned this year for the hurdles and led his team through many difficult contests. The return of a number of varsity men in the field events and the mile run was especially gratifying, although half and quarters milers had to be developed from a practically inexperienced group. Manager Stueber carried out his duties very diligently and satisfactorily during the season.

Boys' Tennis

THE boys' tennis team was given a rather unusual chance to prove its mettle this year. The appropriation was considerably reduced, necessitating some radical plan for securing courts. This was met by the Sunset Tennis Club's offer of its courts during the season in exchange for the team's putting them into condition.

The team consists of Melvin Silverman (captain), Bill Randall (playing manager), Tom Carley, Bub Carley, Jack Farr, Chester Thompson, and Bill Ragsdale.

Girls' Hockey

HOCKEY, the first girls' sport of the school year, is always greeted with much enthusiasm and a large turn-out. Because school started late, the season was short. Miss Park coached the three teams. After many weeks of hard practising, the games were played. The Sophs were easily eliminated, but the games proved to be very exciting when three times the Seniors and Juniors were tied. The matter was then taken up by the Girls' Athletic Council, which decided to award letters to both teams. The Soph team should undoubtedly be congratulated for its splendid efforts, if not successful results. The Senior second team without question carried off the laurels by defeating both the Junior and Soph second teams. The three captains, Shaterian (Senior), Ross (Junior), and Sloat (Soph), piloted their teams remarkably well.

The scores were as follows:

Seniors—0
Juniors—3
Seniors—2
Seniors—0
Seniors—1

Juniors—0
Sophs—0
Sophs—0

Girls' Soccer

MANY persons insist that Soccer is not a girls' sport, but if these self-same persons had seen the girls of R. H. S. wading in and out of foot-deep mud during their soccer practises and games, we feel sure they would have agreed that girls are just as capable of handling the sport as boys. This was especially true this season, as the sport extended over into the muddy days of December. Under the thorough coaching of Alessandroni (Seniors), Hand (Juniors), and Shaterian (Sophs), fine defensive teams, though somewhat lacking in offense, were developed. Twice the Senior and Junior teams fought to a dead-lock. As a result the winning team was determined from the Soph scores. Since the plucky little Sophs had held the Juniors scorless, the Seniors, who had defeated the Sophs, received the awards.

The following are the scores of the games:

Juniors—0

Seniors—1

Girls' Basketball

IN our writeup about the girls' basketball season, we feel that great thanks should first be given to Iris Finch who volunteered her services gratis as coach of the three teams. That meant practises almost every afternoon for more than two months, but Iris did her job and did it well.

A rare event occurred this year when the Junior team won awards. When center de Smedt was taken out of the Senior-Junior game, the Senior team went on the rocks and the Juniors taking advantage of this opportunity defeated their opponents after a hard fought battle. The Sophs deserve great credit for their unfailing courage and spirit.

Because the Seniors did not have a second team, the Junior second team also won awards when it defeated the Sophs. The Seniors regained their prestige, however, when an all-school team consisting of five Seniors, captained by Mary de Smedt, easily defeated an Alumnae team.

The scores were as follows:

Juniors—48
Seniors—38
Seniors—21
Junior 2nd team—30
All-School—33

Sophs—10
Sophs— 8
Juniors—29
Soph 2nd team—5
Alumnae—16

Girls' Baseball

UP to the time this book goes to press little has been done about baseball. However, all the classes are eagerly looking forward to participating in the sport which is fast becoming popular in R. H. S. Under the guidance of Miss Pettengill strong teams will undoubtedly be developed. As coach last year Miss "Pet" very capably taught the girls the skill of handling a ball and bat. The Seniors will have to go some to defeat the Juniors, last year's champions. A close contest is guaranteed with the Junior team anxious to repeat success and the Seniors also desirous of victory. The Sophs, many of whom never had a baseball in their hands until they go out for the sport, should do remarkably well, judging from their athletic prowess revealed in other sports this year. The three games will be as listed below, and if so inclined one may fill in the scores.

Senior..... Soph.....
Senior..... Junior.....

Girls' Track

BEHIND the school, day in and day out with Miss Park as coach, the girls practise their various forms of Track. Running, jumping, hurling, all insure stiff joints and aching muscles, but the girls keep steadily at it. And all for one track meet, our annual field day. The boys have several contests in which to demonstrate their skill, and allow more time for improvement, but not so the girls.

On field day they fight only once for both class and individual honors. Keen rivalry is felt, and every girl has an equal chance at victory. Track is indeed a fine form of contestry because of many different phases offered.

We feel that mention should be made here of the five girls chosen to represent Rutherford in a sports day at New Jersey College for Women on May 6th. These girls are: B. Steiner, L. Shaterian, M. Ellis, E. Steuber, B. Van Auken, and M. Telschow, alternative. This is a fine experience for the girls, and we feel confident they will always do their best for R. H. S.

A ONE-YEAR COURSE IN LAW

This thorough and complete one-year resident course in law of university grad is primarily intended to prepare men and women for the Bar examinations to practice law in those states, the other requirements of which can be met by the student. Many states do not require a high school or college education as a pre-requisite to practice law. This one-year course in law will in these cases be sufficient preparation for the Bar examinations. Business men and women who do not plan to practice law but desire this course, the better to meet daily business problems, will also be admitted. For those who have studied law elsewhere, this one-year course will prove invaluable for the Bar examinations. Where a student prefers, this course may be extended to two, three or four years and he may attend morning, afternoon or evening sessions. Classes are co-educational.
